Cultivating our Southern Ties

We all know that our Southern ties run deep. Here in South Carolina there is no such thing as a stranger; they are just considered people we haven't met yet. That is one reason I love being a part of the Department of Agriculture. There are so many farmers, citizens, and others involved within the agriculture industry, and it is an honor to know and work with them and to be able to create even more connections here in our great state.

When you think about the links that agriculture provides, it's not just the people. The world of agriculture is so intricate and intertwined, even within itself. For example, animal agriculture is supported by the various crops that our state produces. An estimated 538,000 tons of soybean meal is used as feed to help nurture and grow our in-state animals, including beef, broilers, swine, turkeys, and others. Animal agriculture is the largest consumer of soybean meal in the United States, making partnerships like the one between South Carolina pork and soybean farmers mutually beneficial.

Cattle—with my experience being mostly with dairy cows—are great re-cyclers of other farm products. At one time or another, the dairy cow diet might consist of cottonseed separated from the lint in ginning,

Dairy Farmers Celebrate National Dairy Month

By Caroline Roper
Southeast United Dairy Industry Association, Inc.

June is a time to celebrate – summer is starting and school's out – but June is also National Dairy Month! Join the American Dairy Association of South Carolina and "Get More with Milk" during this warm summer month.

National Dairy Month first began in 1937 to promote the consumption of delicious and nutritious dairy products. Today, June Dairy Month is recognized nationwide as a time to celebrate dairy farmers and all things dedicated to dairy. June is a very busy month for South Carolina dairy farmers, not just because of their work promoting dairy, but also due to the round-the-clock job of keeping cows comfortable and healthy in the warm summer months.

"We have been dairy farming since 1949," said South Carolina dairy farmer Scott Mayer, a third-generation dairy farmer. "My cousin is a fourth-generation dairy farmer, making three generations actively farming right now."

Mayer's Dairy Farm, located in Newberry, is one of the largest dairy farms in South Carolina. They currently milk approximately 2,000 cows. The Mayers also farm around 3,000 acres in silage in order to feed their cows.

"My favorite part of dairy farming is working with my family every single day. Not many people get the opportunity to work with their father, uncle and cousins every day," Mayer said. "I also take pride in knowing that I am a small part in producing nature's most perfect food – milk – and I also enjoy getting to take care of my cows."

The dairy industry plays a big role in South Carolina's economy, accounting for more than $28 million in revenue last year. Newberry County was the top county for milk production in 2015, followed by Orangeburg, Bamberg and Chester. South Carolina is currently home to approximately 15,000 milking cows on 53 licensed dairy farms. Last year, those cows produced 261 million pounds of milk, which is equivalent to 30.3 million gallons.

On behalf of the South Carolina dairy farmers, the association invites everyone to pick up a glass of cold milk or eat some ice cream to cool off this summer. To learn more about events going on across South Carolina and about how you can "Get More with Milk," visit www.junedairymonth.org.

Farm Aid Advisory Board Members Announced

The initial meeting of the South Carolina Farm Aid Advisory Board was held June 2 at the Phillips Market Center in West Columbia. Committee members discussed the application process, criteria for eligibility, and an implementation and training plan.

The Farm Aid legislation provided for the formation of an advisory board to make recommendations to the S.C. Department of Agriculture in the administration of the grant. Members of the advisory committee are:

Martin Eubanks (ex-officio), S.C. Department of Agriculture; Meredith Cleland, S.C. Department of Revenue; Dr. Kathy Coleman, Clemson University; Dr. Delbert Foster, S.C. State University; Neal Baxley, S.C. Farm Bureau representative; Kelly Wiseman, ArborOne Farm Credit; Matthew Flemming, Midland Agency Insurance; and Walter Dantzler, agricultural commodities representative.

South Carolina Beef Council: June Is Beef Month

The South Carolina cattle and beef industry will celebrate "June is Beef Month" here in the Palmetto State. This industry is a top-ten agricultural cash commodity and contributes to new wealth and economic growth for our state. It is recognized for its importance during June.

Cecil Eaddy, a cattle producer from Manning and president of the SC Cattleman's Association, stated "the 3,900 - plus cattle producers in South Carolina raise quality, safe animals on their farms each day." South Carolina cattle producers care for their animals and land the same as they do their individual families.

Today's consumers can be assured of safe, lean and nutritious beef from our producers.

Darren Carter, a cattle producer for Ninety Six and chairman of the SC Beef Council, says "lean beef is important to each individual and it promotes a healthy lifestyle." He encourages the use of beef in meal solutions to get zip (zinc, iron and protein).

As the summer months begin, both Eaddy and Carter continue to promote beef to consumers, especially grilling for Father's Day on Sunday June 19, as well as all during the summer grilling season (Memorial Day through Labor Day).

Blueberry Cheesecake Tartlets

Ease: Easy Yield: 30 tartlets
Preparation time: 20 minutes Cook Time: 20 minutes

2 (1-ounce) packages frozen mini phyllo pastry shells
4 ounces low-fat cream cheese
3 tablespoons sugar, divided
1 (6-ounce) container low-fat honey vanilla Greek yogurt

1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon lemon zest
1/2 cup cranberry juice
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 cup blueberries

Bake pastry shells according to package directions; cool completely.

Beat cream cheese and 1 tablespoon sugar in a medium bowl with an electric mixer until creamy; add yogurt, vanilla and lemon zest, beating until smooth. Spoon mixture evenly into cooled pastry shells; refrigerate until ready to serve.

Combine juices and remaining 2 tablespoons sugar in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium-high heat, stirring until sugar dissolves. Reduce heat to medium; stir in blueberries. Simmer 10 minutes or until blueberries begin to pop and sauce thickens; remove from heat and let cool. To serve, spoon sauce evenly over filling in shells.

Cultivating our Southern Ties

citrus pulp after the juice is squeezed, molasses from sugar processing, brewers grain after the beer is taken from the mash, or even leftover bread from the bakery. The dairy cow is quite good for the environment, turning leftovers into milk. Since June is dairy month, it's appropriate to give some kudos to the cud chewers.

Over the past decade, animal agriculture has led an increase of $415 million in economic output, $71 million in household wages, 2,700 jobs, and $19 million in income tax revenue. It's amazing how the agriculture industry is self-sustaining while supporting us and the economy as a whole. The links from our state's agriculture definitely lives up to our reputation as citizens of the South.

In order to raise awareness of this unique aspect of our agriculture industry, South Carolina pork and soybean farmers partnered with the Carolina Country Music Festival again this year at their second annual festival in Myrtle Beach. The festival featured more than 30 of country music's most popular recording artists, including Gary Allan, Keith Urban, Tim McGraw, Florida Georgia Line, Jake Owen, Cole Swindell, Kelsea Ballerini, and South Carolina's own, A Thousand Horses.

The Carolina Country Music Festival is held at the Burroughs and Chapin Pavilion Place on Ocean Boulevard. While enjoying great music, fans also had the opportunity to learn more about South Carolina's largest industry.

On another note, if there is something you promised to do when pigs fly, it's time to do it. There were pigs soaring overhead on the "Pork Powered by Soy" zip-line, sharing the story about the powerful production of our agriculture.

Besides flying pigs, we also celebrate beef as well as dairy month in June. I hope that you'll be reminded of our strong agricultural ties and ways our commodities work together as they all help to sustain each other. South Carolina has much to be proud of, and I believe the strong support system of the agriculture industry and community is one of our greatest assets.

Farm Aid Advisory Board

To be eligible for the grant, farmers must have:

- experienced a verifiable loss of affected agricultural commodities of at least 40 percent as a result of the October 2015 flooding,

- a farm located in a USDA disaster-declared county and
- a USDA-Farm Service Agency issued farm number.

Applicants will also be required to sign an affidavit certifying that loss information is accurate. Clemson Extension will host regional training sessions.

"Over the next few months, we will work together to get funds in the hands of farmers as quickly and equitably as possible," said Agriculture Commissioner Hugh Weathers. "This effort is an outstanding example of collaboration between the leading agricultural organizations in our state."

The advisory board will dissolve within 45 days of the completion of grant awards, but no later than June 30, 2017.

Look for more information at Clemson Extension, Farm Bureau, other agribusiness offices, and on the SCDA website (agriculture.sc.gov).
